

ABOUT Natural Horsemanship ...

Natural Horsemanship creates a relationship with a horse by communicating in the same natural language they use with each other:

Body language,

Touch

and Feel.

It creates an unusual inter-species bonding between a predator (the human) and a prey animal (the horse). Using compassion, Natural Horsemanship enables the human to understand the relationship from the horse's point of view. He can then communicate with the horse not only physically, but more importantly, mentally and emotionally. This transforms the relationship into a mutual willing partnership by creating the same three necessary qualities required in all positive human relationships:

Mutual love,

Trust

and Respect.

It is these three qualities that allow the horse to accept the human as his respected and trusted leader on the ground and on his back. The result is riding together with harmony.
